Skills for every young person report

The House of Lords Youth Unemployment Committee has published its Skills for every young person report to urge the Government to provide more support for young people to help them get into work.

A brief summary of the report highlights the main factors that lead to the unemployment of 475,000 young people aged 16-24 in the UK, as well as the inequalities that those from disadvantaged and minority ethnic groups face. The report identifies a number of key drivers for the high unemployment rates among young people:

- Skills mismatch – schools and further education fail to equip young people with the skills required to enter employment, especially for sectors such as green energy and digital.
- Lack of appropriate careers guidance and work experience
- Underfunded and undervalued further education
- Lack of apprenticeship opportunities
- Additional barriers and lack of support – (e.g. related to language barriers, gender, ethnicity, special education needs, lower socio-economic backgrounds)

The full report is available here: Skills for every young person \(parliament.uk\)
